

Right From the Start: Parents as Sexuality Educators

If you work with parents and families, don't pass up this wonderful opportunity to spend a day with Deborah Roffman, a nationally known human sexuality educator and author of Sex & Sensibility: The Thinking Parent's Guide to Talking Sense About Sex and but how'd I get in there in the first place?

Deborah Roffman is a powerful advocate for children, understanding that in a society that gives confusing and exploitative messages about sexuality, children are desperate for communication from the caring adults in their lives. Parents and caregivers are the most significant influence in the lives of young people and are their most effective buffer against risk-taking behaviors.

This workshop will focus on effective strategies to support parents and caregivers as the primary sexuality educators of their children. Ms. Roffman will share her insights, humor, and practical applications based on her vast experience working in the classroom and with parents and professionals.

Intended Audience:

Professionals who work with parents and families, including teachers, early childhood educators, community health and sexuality educators, social workers, librarians, medical and mental health professionals, clergy.
